25X1

1. This memorandum updates the information you received 16 February 1966 on the proposed program of inter-Directorate briefings. It also contains in paragraph 4 a recommendation for your approval.
2. On 24 February 1966 action officers from each of the Directorates met with [] of the Office of Training, who is coordinating the briefings, to discuss tentative plans for the program and make recommendations concerning it. Suggestions from each Directorate for topics to be covered during the briefings had been consolidated and each action officer received the list appropriate to his Directorate.
3. After discussing various aspects of the program, the action officers concluded that:
 - a. Arrangements for each briefing should be worked out directly by the principals concerned to afford maximum flexibility in solving the problems of time, availability of personnel, special clearances, etc. It was thought that in some cases Directorates might choose to brief each other at a single sitting rather than to schedule two separate meetings for the purpose.
 - b. The program of briefings should begin before 1 May 1966 and be completed before 1 July 1966.
 - c. Action officers should keep the OTR coordinator informed as to the time, place, and other arrangements for each briefing and obtain from him any assistance needed with respect to space, equipment, etc.
 - d. With proper regard for security clearances and with the approval of the briefing Directorates, one or two senior members of the Office of Training should, if possible, audit (but not record) each briefing for the purpose of identifying new material that ought to be covered in training courses. Arrangements to incorporate such material in the proper course would be worked out later between OTR and the briefing Directorate.

4. It is recommended that the conclusions outlined in paragraph 3 be approved in principle and that the OTR coordinator and the Directorates be authorized to proceed with the briefing program along the lines indicated.

* However, care should be taken to ensure that these briefings are not too superficial. I doubt that Directorates briefing each other at a single sitting, as suggested in paragraph 3.a, or in less than the twelve sessions mentioned in paragraph 2 of your 15 February 1966 memorandum would be sufficiently comprehensive to comply with the spirit of the Director's request.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Executive Director-Comptroller

SUBJECT : Integration of Directorates

REFERENCE : Memo dtd 7 Dec 65 to ExDir-Compt fr DD/S, same subject

1. This memorandum contains in paragraph 6 a recommendation for your approval.

2. In line with reference and with our discussion of 21 January 1966, the Office of Training has developed a proposal for a series of briefings for senior officers in the Agency designed to bring about a greater understanding between Directorates. The proposal calls for a total of 12 sessions to enable each Directorate to brief the senior members of each other Directorate, with each session tailored to the specific needs and interests of the Directorate being briefed. Each session would be expected to last about three hours, including a period for questions and answers.

3. On 7 February 1966 OTR requested each of the four Directorates to indicate, with respect to such a briefing program, (a) what its senior officers want to know about each of the other Directorates, (b) what the senior officers of each of the other Directorates should know about it, and (c) the number of its senior officers to be briefed by the other Directorates. Responses to these requests are expected by the close of business on 17 February. OTR will consolidate them for each Directorate to use in designing the three briefings it will present.

4. It is proposed that a schedule for the briefings - their frequency and sequence - be worked out in a conference of action officers from the four Directorates during the week of 21 February. At that time each Directorate would receive the suggestions as to what others would like to know about it and could raise any questions concerning them. As soon as possible thereafter, OTR would announce an appropriate schedule of briefings and begin preparations for holding them.

DTR same subj

1. In compliance with the direction contained in the reference, this memorandum presents a proposal for carrying out a program designed to improve integration of Agency Directorates.
2. The Office of Training has requested each of the four Directorates to submit statements of desired areas to be covered in a series of briefings. Responses to these requests will be received by OTR by close of business on 17 February 1966. OTR will consolidate these responses so that they will provide guidance to each Directorate in designing briefings for the other Directorates.
3. The objective of the program can best be achieved by a series of 12 briefings in which each Directorate briefs each other Directorate, each briefing tailored to meet the needs of the Directorate being briefed. Each briefing should be three hours long, including a period of time for questions and discussion.
4. It is suggested that the scheduling of the briefings -- the frequency and sequence -- be worked out in a conference of the action officers of the four Directorates, with OTR assuming the responsibility of arranging the conference, submitting the results for approval, and making the necessary space and time arrangements.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Executive Director-Comptroller

SUBJECT : Integration of Directorates

1. This memorandum is for your information only.

2. Reference is made to our earlier conversation concerning the decision to bring about a greater understanding between Directorates. I offer the following suggestions as to how this might be accomplished:

a. The DCI could, on an appropriate occasion such as an Executive Committee meeting, express his desire that each Directorate have a greater understanding and be knowledgeable of the programs, activities and problems of the other Directorates. This knowledge and understanding could promote greater appreciation of the mutual problems between Directorates and would encourage more team work and coordination on behalf of overall Agency interests. Development of the concept that all Agency activities, regardless of Directorate prerogative, have an impact and a contribution to the efforts and responsibilities of the other Directorates will bring about a greater understanding of their mutual efforts and permit more efficient and smoother accomplishment of Agency missions.

b. In an effort to accomplish the above, each Directorate could arrange to brief the other Directorates at the senior staff level on its programs, plans, activities and problems. Areas of mutual interest could be highlighted and problems of interface, communications, and perhaps jurisdiction could be highlighted. I would suggest a discussion period following the presentation with a view to developing a format where areas of additional cooperation could be enhanced.

c. It is further suggested that a program of briefings not as extensive as (b) above be arranged for the second level of staff supervision of each Directorate. This would permit the briefing of the second

CONFIDENTIAL

supervisory levels of each Directorate on the programs, plans, activities, and problems of other Directorates, but without introducing discussions of broader policy questions in inter-Directorate relations. These briefings could be followed by a discussion period for the enlightenment of the participating personnel.

d. The Office of Training could incorporate into certain of its review courses, condensations of these briefings which would develop and promote a better understanding of the overall Agency interests and interrelationships between Directorates in accomplishing the broad Agency mission.

e. If such a program is deemed appropriate to achieve this objective, I would think that the basic objectives could be accomplished within six to eight months. This program would reach the bulk of the first and second line supervisors of the Agency and they in turn could translate this through their command channels into a more effective program of coordination, cooperation, and Agency team effort. Through the OTR training programs, the substance of these briefings would be available to employees returning from overseas duty and to new professional employees entering on duty. In this manner, overall Agency coverage could be achieved.

2. If the above suggestions are acceptable, OTR can prepare a proposal to achieve these objectives.

1. Please note the comments of the Executive Director-Comptroller on reference memorandum (attached) which set forth implementation action on subject program. The Office of Training is hereby assigned action for organizing this program and arranging the appropriate schedule of briefings. I would like to report to the Director of Central Intelligence by 15 February on how you propose to carry out this program.

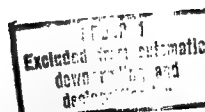

2. The Executive Director-Comptroller discussed this program at the Executive Committee meeting on 21 January. In the discussion that followed it was indicated that most senior officers of any given Directorate have a reasonably good understanding of the functions and responsibilities of the other Directorates. It was suggested that the briefings could be particularly beneficial if the Directorates could make known what areas of information and activities they would like to have the other Directorates cover in their briefings. This is predicated on the fact that there are certain activities of each Directorate which are little known to the other Directorates concerning which a full-scale briefing and explanation would be most helpful. In setting up the program it is suggested that each Directorate be queried along this line to obtain listings of those areas of activity for briefing purposes by the other Directorates.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Executive Director-Comptroller

SUBJECT : Integration of Directorates

1. This memorandum is for your information only.
2. Reference is made to our earlier conversation concerning the decision to bring about a greater understanding between Directorates. I offer the following suggestions as to how this might be accomplished:

a. The DCI could, on an appropriate occasion such as an Executive Committee meeting, express his desire that each Directorate have a greater understanding and be knowledgeable of the programs, activities and problems of the other Directorates. This knowledge and understanding could promote greater appreciation of the mutual problems between Directorates and would encourage more team work and coordination on behalf of overall Agency interests. Development of the concept that all Agency activities, regardless of Directorate prerogative, have an impact and a contribution to the efforts and responsibilities of the other Directorates will bring about a greater understanding of their mutual efforts and permit more efficient and smoother accomplishment of Agency missions.

b. In an effort to accomplish the above, each Directorate could arrange to brief the other Directorates at the senior staff level on its programs, plans, activities and problems. Areas of mutual interest could be highlighted and problems of interface, communications, and perhaps jurisdiction could be highlighted. I would suggest a discussion period following the presentation with a view to developing a format where areas of additional cooperation could be enhanced.

c. It is further suggested that a program of briefings not as extensive as (b) above be arranged for the second level of staff supervision of each Directorate. This would permit the briefing of the second supervisory levels of each Directorate on the programs, plans, activities, and problems of other Directorates, but without introducing discussions of broader policy questions in inter-Directorate relations. These briefings could be followed by a discussion period for the enlightenment of the participating personnel.

d. The Office of Training could incorporate into certain of its review courses, condensations of these briefings which would develop and promote a better understanding of the overall Agency interests and interrelationships between Directorates in accomplishing the broad Agency mission.

e. If such a program is deemed appropriate to achieve this objective, I would think that the basic objectives could be accomplished within six to eight months. This program would reach the bulk of the first and second line supervisors of the Agency and they in turn could translate this through their command channels into a more effective program of coordination, cooperation, and Agency team effort. Through the OTR training programs, the substance of these briefings would be available to employees returning from overseas duty and to new professional employees entering on duty. In this manner, overall Agency coverage could be achieved.

2. If the above suggestions are acceptable, OTR can prepare a proposal to achieve these objectives.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Executive Director-Comptroller

SUBJECT : Integration of Directorates

1. This memorandum is for your information only.
2. Relative to your conversation with Mr. Bannerman and Mr. Baird on the subject of the Director's concern about bringing the Directorates closer together, Mr. Bannerman wanted to make the following suggestions:
 - a. The Director of Central Intelligence should, on one or more occasions at the executive meetings, express his views regarding the necessity for Directorates to cooperate and work together, especially in the collection and production of intelligence.
 - b. Since there may well be a failure of Directorates to appreciate each other's problems, objectives and points of view, briefings by the Deputies should be scheduled which would be focused on principal areas of overlapping concern.
 - c. Similar briefings to those mentioned in (b) above should be made a part of various formal Office of Training orientation courses so that middle management can acquire an appreciation of the problems.
 - d. The content of formal Office of Training courses should be examined to ensure that the interrelationship and interdependence of Directorates is properly presented.
2. It is my conviction that the attitudes and predispositions of Agency components are largely a reflection of senior management and that any significant results will come through the observable actions and statements of the Deputy Directors and their principal assistants.
